British Renew Raids on German Base at Sylt

REPORT MUCH DAMAGE AFTER 7-HOUR BATTLE

Six Groups of Ships Keep Up Continuous Rain of Bombs on Fortifications.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 20 — The unleashed royal air force, its ... whitted by a booming seven-hour continuous raid on the German fortifications on Sylt island, returned to the scene today with bomb, gun and camera to work more havoc and prove it with pictures.

Air ministry sources said the main objective of the daylight flights over the 350-mile North Sea expanse was to make photographs, but reports from Tonder, Denmark, said Sylt apparently was being bombarded all over again.

Two planes which took photographs of Sylt this morning returned safely.

Poor visibility, compared with the bright moonlight and drifting clouds that aided the British last night and early today, prevented the Danish coastal observers from estimating accurately the number of planes involved in the follow-up raid.

Six Groups of Planes

They said, however, that apparently there were six groups of bombers, with the reverberating explosions equal or nearly equal to those previously, and German anti-aircraft batteries keeping up a terrific defense.

The Danes said they themselves ... fired warning shots at one foreign plane which flew over Danish soil, and that several bombs were dropped on the coast of Denmark, on which they said one plane landed with splitting machine-guns.

Thirty of the latest types of Wellington and Whitley bombers were believed to have engaged in the raids starting last night, the British press association reported, although there was no official word of the numbers.

Report Severe Loss

Already, on the strength of glimpses caught by the crews of fleeting bombers in the rainbow haze of battle, the air ministry reported the gigantic raid had destroyed seaplane hangars, a railway, barracks, jetties and concrete ramps.

What the photographs will show and whether the follow-up flights have dropped any more bombs must wait until "all planes have returned" from this latest mission, ministry sources said.

Reports from Tonder, Denmark, said two planes returned to the scene at 9 a. m. (3 a. m. London time) and dropped six bombs, but more than 100 were dropped in the mass raid of last night and early today.

The bright, thunderous crash of bombs, earth-shaking roars, that signified destroyed arsenals, and the leaping glare of burning hangars and shops gave Britain's reply through the night to Saturday's German raid on Scapa Flow.

This was the picture fitted together from air ministry communiques and the accounts of witnesses in nearby Denmark.

From p. m. (2 p. m. Marion time) until after 3 a. m., the bombing attack continued. The roar of anti-aircraft guns, the network of tracer bullets and the white glare of searchlights ... by Sylt's defenders contributed to the nether-world scene.

Only one British plane was lost, the air ministry said.

"Direct hits on hangars housing seaplanes which have raided the British coast were claimed by crews of several aircraft," the ministry reported in a graphic ... of the results.

Railway lines and barrack ... were reported hit.

Germans Minimize Damage in Raid

BERLIN, March 20—DNB, the German news agency, tonight said ... persons were slightly injured by bomb fragments in the British raids on Sylt, but denied British reports that the air base had been damaged or a munitions ... destroyed.

The only accomplishment of the raid, DNB said, was destruction of an uninhabited house and the ... casualties.

ENVOY'S TALK STIRS CAPITAL

Hull Calls for Copy of Cromwell's Speech Before Canadian Group.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 20 — Secretary Hull directed James H. R. Cromwell, the minister to Canada, today to send him at once an official version of Cromwell's Toronto speech praising Anglo-French war aims and criticizing Germany.

To make sure there is no delay, Hull also asked the American legation in Ottawa to forward a copy, since Cromwell is on a visit to his New Jersey home and might not have one with him.

Some members of the senate foreign relations committee said they believed Cromwell had overstepped the bonds of diplomatic restraint and there was some talk of demanding his recall.

Rep. Sweeney (D-Ohio) demanded an investigation and possible recall today of "our playboy minister to Canada" and Rep. Fish (R-NY) requested information on whether Cromwell was expressing the views of President Roosevelt.

"If our playboy minister to Canada," Sweeney said, "wants to fight for the British empire I respectfully suggest that he join the ranks of such distinguished American expatriates as Lady Astor and Kermit Roosevelt, so that he may 'carry on' for the empire.

"We should have the courage to tell Cromwell and his lawfully-wedded fortune, Doris Duke, America's wealthy heiress, to get the hell out of this republic."

Senator LaFollette, Progressive of Wisconsin, said he thought Cromwell had "stepped outside his duties as a minister."

Sweeney described Cromwell as "a reincarnation of Walter Hines Page," who was America's ambassador to London in the Wilson administration.

CONSERVATION GROUP FORMED FOR COUNTY

Organization of a Marion county conservation committee and election of representatives of this county's sportsmen to district conservation meetings were held when some 60 men met last night in the common pleas courtroom with conservation department officials.

Cyril T. Guthery of LaRue and Roy Abel of Marion were named as the farmer and sportsmen representatives for the county. Elmer A. Williams of near Marion, as chairman, heads the county committee. Other officers are William Roszman of Meeker, vice chairman, and William Nippert of Marion, secretary.

Discussion centered on the conservation department's 15-point program, set up for betterment and development of Ohio's wildlife and fish resources. It was led by Frank Hard of Washington C. H., veteran conservation enforcement officer and currently supervisor of district No. 5, which includes Marion.

After reading the program, Mr. Hard presided during the election of county officers and representatives. From each of the state's seven districts will be selected two committeemen to meet and cooperate with the state commission in an effort to promote, develop and maintain a well-defined and workable program for Ohio conservation.

Among the visiting conservation officials attending were Mr. Hard, L. E. Volk, fish management agent of Delaware and game protectors O. H. Neimeyer of Prospect, Chalmer Burns of Fayette county, Eldon Sturseon of Union county and M. C. Tray of Madison county. Ralph Sandburn, past president of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, and Dr. Lacksen, president of the federation of Franklin county sportsmen's clubs, both of Columbus.

Allied Cabinets Find Rough Going in Parliaments

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Insistence on more action in the war gave the allied governments a rather rough passage yesterday.

Both were subjected to pointed demands by critical members of parliament for a more vigorous policy, but while British Prime Minister Chamberlain came through the ordeal ruffled though sound, Premier Daladier presented the resignation of his cabinet because of lack of sufficient direct support in a vote of confidence.

The debate in the house of commons was searching. It brought from Premier Chamberlain the declaration that Britain intends to fight to a finish for *just such a moral peace as Presi*dent Roosevelt outlined last Saturday.

But the English statesman failed to indicate to anxious inquirers what action would be taken, or when.

Raid May Be Answer

Maybe he was depending for his answer on the sensational British air raid on the German air base at Sylt, in retaliation for the Nazi bombing of Scapa Flow the day before.

The pressure on the allied government has increased since Hitler put the next move up to his opponents by forcing the Russo-Finnish peace, thereby forestalling an allied intervention which might have been disastrous for Germany.

The charge that the government had allowed the Nazis to keep the initiative was shot at the prime minister's grey head, and the debate recalled the biting remark of former Premier David Lloyd George in commons last week:

"It is the old trouble—too late. Too late with Czecho-Slovakia, too late with Poland, certainly too late with Finland. It is always too late or too little or both, and that is the road to disaster."

Mr. Chamberlain's curt response to charges of inaction was typical of his cautious, but determined nature.

Won't Be Rushed

"We cannot be hustled into adventures which appear to us to present small chance of success, much chance of danger and perhaps disaster."

Those four words, "we cannot be hustled," represent the policy which has been pursued by Pre*mier Chamberlain as far back as* the breaking of the Hitlerian crisis at the time of Munich. He declines to be stampeded, and once the conservative Mr. Chamberlain has his mind made up, it would take a traction engine to move him.

England and France haven't yet reached their peak of preparedness. However, they seem pretty well set for action.

Observers have looked upon the big allied concentration of troops in the near east as providing a logical opportunity for a strategic move against Germany from the rear through the Balkans. There have been increasing indications that this move was under serious consideration. It might come with the spring.

CITY, COUNTY RELIEF STUDIED AT CONFERENCE

Marion Officials Discuss Problems with State Leaders; WPA Project Planned.

The relief situations of Marion city and county, both facing financial difficulties, were given a thorough airing yesterday afternoon at a three-hour conference of local officials with State Welfare Director Charles Sherwood and other state officials in Columbus.

The only definite outcomes were:

1. That the city and county plan to cooperate in a joint WPA road and street project employing an estimated 139 men for 10 months. To be financed with auto tag revenue, mostly furnished by the county.

2. The county commissioners plan to issue delinquent tax notes at intervals to handle non-employable relief cases.

3. The city has three possible sources of revenue for matching state funds—delinquent tax notes, special tax levy and a special tax such as an occupational tax. The city has reached no decision as to which course to take.

4. Clarification of the probable needs for 10400 and the possible sources of revenue.

The city-county WPA project, which is as yet in the process of formation, would cost about $140,000 of which the county as sponsor would supply most of the local funds. The auto tag money would amount to approximately $28,000, one-fourth of the total yearly revenue from this source. The city would also probably furnish trucks and other equipment.

The diversion of one-fourth of the auto-tag revenue to the WPA project would cripple the county engineer's office by making necessary a proportionate reduction in the amount of road and bridge maintenance and surface treating work performed. County Engineer Carl H. Tozzer was asked today what his reaction was to the proposed diversion of funds and said that there was no reaction. He commented that the handling of funds is entirely up to the commissioners and that there is nothing he can do about it. His office will do whatever work is possible if the funds are reduced, he said. Mr. Tozzer commented that he recognized the commissioners are "in a tough spot" on relief financing and praised their previous handling of relief without any special tax levies.

No Special Road Revenue

The engineer's office since 1933 has been operating without any special road tax revenue. For five years before 1933 there was a 2.5 mill road levy which gave the engineer's office a substantial revenue which it does not now have. The proposed diversion of auto tag money will further reduce its funds.

The commissioners announced today that they probably will take steps to divert the funds at their meeting Thursday. They also expect to issue the first delinquent tax notes since the depression began, probably $5,000 or $8,000 to meet relief expenses.

At yesterday's conference all

Family of 14 Made Homeless by $800 Fire on Uncapher Avenue

Public Asked To Help Replace Beds and Articles of Clothing Destroyed by Flames.

An appeal from Fire Chief McFarland went out to the public today on behalf of a family of 14 who were routed from their home by an $800 fire yesterday afternoon.

The family is that of Mr. and Mrs. William Ferriman of 1033 Uncapher avenue, described by the chief as deserving of the public's consideration. Mr. and Mrs. Ferriman and their 11 children and Mr. Ferriman's aged father, A. E. Ferriman, all made their home in a six-room frame house under trying conditions.

Even before the fire the family eked out a bare living with Mr. Ferriman working whenever a job offered itself at a local factory and his father doing part time work. The family has kept off relief.

Yesterday the fire added the final touch.

It swept the roof off their little house, destroyed most of the upper story together with beds and clothing.

Contributions Sought

The public is asked by the chief and the department to contribute beds and bed clothing, any other furniture and also clothing for the family. Contributions may be made through the Central fire station on Prospect street.

The house will not be livable for some time. While it is being repaired the family will live with relatives. Mrs. Ferriman, 35, and most of the children will stay at the home of her brother, George Guy of Cheney avenue. Mr. Ferriman, 39, and the others probably will stay with his brother, Charles Ferriman of the Prospect pike.

The house incidentally, is owned by the Home Building Savings & Loan Co. and is in the process of being purchased by Mr. Ferriman.

The fire broke out about 4 o'clock yesterday in the roof near the chimney at the southeast corner. It apparently burned for 15 or 20 minutes before it was noticed by some of the children coming home from school. Mr. and Mrs. Ferriman, four of the smaller children and Mr. Ferriman's father were in the house at the time. The children range in age from seven months to 18 years.

Roof in Flames

The entire roof was in flames by the time firemen from the West Side station arrived at 4:05. The nearest water hydrant was several hundred feet away. The firemen battled the blaze for about an hour before bringing it under control and the chief counted it lucky in keeping the flames from doing more damage than they did. A good wind from the west swept the flames across the roof, but did not threaten any nearby buildings.

The Ferriman home is only one room wide and the rooms are narrow at that. Department members were amazed at how 14 persons managed to live in it. Upstairs there were three small bedrooms with room for two or three to sleep in each. The front room downstairs also contained a bed. The middle downstairs room was a combination living and work room. The only heat was provided by a coal stove in the middle room downstairs and a kitchen range.

The Ferriman home is near the south end of Uncapher avenue near the city limits.

FIRE SWEEPS TRAIN COACH

C. & O. Bunk Car Catches Fire Near Here; Loss Placed at $1,500.

Flames gutted a C. & O. railroad company bunk coach here this morning as it was enroute from Upper Sandusky to Owens station, south of here, to house a crew of section workers.

Firemen from the West Side station battled the fire for nearly an hour-and-a-half, from 8:45 a. m. until after 11, before extinguishing the flames. Included in the loss were 20 steel bunks, steel lockers and clothing of about 20 workmen.

Company employes here estimated the damage would amount *to at least $1,500 while other un*official estimates of the loss were higher.

The car was unoccupied at the time of the fire, the workmen having gone to Owens earlier in the morning on another work train. The workmen are members of the company's "floating crew," which includes men from cities throughout Ohio and West Virginia.

Interior Burned

The entire interior of the 60-foot car was burned, including the bunks and lockers. Several suitcases containing clothing were removed undamaged but a far greater amount of clothing was hanging in the lockers and was destroyed, firemen reported. A large quantity of wool blankets and other bedding also was burned.

The metal roof was wrecked by the heat and flames and all the windows were broken. Chief McFarland said that probably the only parts of the coach that can be salvaged are the under-carriage and sections of the wooden exterior framework.

The car, one of 30 being taken to Owens station and Prospect, apparently caught fire several miles north of Marion but the flames were not discovered by the train crew until the train was about one-half mile north of the city, railroad officials said.

The crew continued into Marion

Traffic Survey Analyzes Uptown Area's Slow Spots

This is the ninth in a series of articles based on the recently completed WPA traffic survey report.

• • •

After driving through Marion's business district 120 times to see what it was like, the WPA traffic surveyors came to the conclusion that things are a little congested.

They undoubtedly knew something was wrong after the first trip, but they wanted to make sure so they drove back and forth five different ways. They called it a speed and delay study, meaning that they clocked themselves as they rode along or waited impatiently in a traffic jam.

The idea behind the coming and going was to provide statistics for the following possible uses:

1. For the city engineering department, planning commission or city council to use in determining steps needed to alleviate delay.

2. To indicate to the police locations for assignment of traffic officers.

3. For consideration along with other parts of the survey in retiming of traffic signals.

Nuisance Effect of Signals

The WPA report authors concluded that delay in traffic multiplies the regulatory effect of traffic signals, which function best when traffic is in a continuously flowing stream. The effects are the backing up of traffic lines into the preceding intersection; excessive mid-block speeds by motorists attempting to "make the light" after having been delayed.

"Such behavior on the part of motorists contributes to accident frequency," comment the authors "as his anger at being unnecessarily delayed is reversed, lessening his sense of caution."

Remedies for the congestion situation were suggested in

U. S. AVOIDING PEACE MOVES

Government Stays Clear of Any Plan Given Little Chance of Success.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 20—If there is such a thing as a 10-foot pole in diplomacy, the United States is using it to keep away from even the appearance of taking the slightest part in any peace moves which may be going on in Europe.

Undersecretary Welles, President Roosevelt's fact-finding envoy who sailed today for the United States, has proved a magnet for all varieties of peace and mediation suggestions.

However, on the eve of his departure, Welles said emphatically that he had not received any peace plan or proposals from any belligerent or other government, nor had he conveyed any such proposals to any government.

Caution Voiced

As if to buttress what Welles said, the White House chose the same day to caution the country against too great optimism.

"Peace headlines," said Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, "would appear to be very empty." On the other hand, he added, America should not despair of peace.

President Roosevelt later said the government lacked any information on the Hitler-Mussolini meeting Monday.

Behind this generally negative attitude lies the following explanation, according to most reliable sources:

To act as an intermediary in the presentation of peace proposals entails a tremendous responsibility. In the first place, the intermediary invariably creates the impression that he regards the proposals as worth while conveying from one enemy to another.

It's Dangerous Step

Besides throwing the prestige of the American government behind a set of peace terms, any such overture confronts a belligerent nation with the gravest of choices.

The belligerent may not feel inclined to accept the offer. If he rejects it, he rejects not only the *enemy's terms but also the good offices of the United States, pos*sibly his friend.

He does not wish to offend his friend, or to appear responsible for continuing a war. But at the same time, for his own interests or what he believes the interests of the world, he can not accept the peace terms offered. Even to *dispute them might give an ap*pearance of weakness.

The best-informed sources here insist that Mr. Roosevelt will hold aloof from peace initiatives until he gets hold of what he considers a good and lasting peace.

LEBRUN CALLS FINANCE HEAD TO LEAD NATION

Premier Quits After Minority in Chamber Give Him Vote of Confidence.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, March 20—Premier Edouard Daladier resigned today amid criticism of France's prosecution of the war against Germany and President Albert Lebrun asked Finance Minister Paul Reynaud to form a "war cabinet."

Reynaud said he would give Lebrun his answer tomorrow morning.

The president called in Reynaud, who has been notably successful at his finance post, after Daladier's Radical-Socialist party announced the retiring premier's refusal to attempt a new combination.

Follows Tradition

Daladier declined in conformity with "parliamentary tradition," it was announced. That meant he interpreted as an expression of disapproval of his conduct of the war a minority vote of confidence which the chamber of deputies had given him earlier in the day.

Although the vote was 239 to 1 in his favor, there were more than 300 abstentions in the total chamber membership of 551.

The vote was accompanied by a call for acceleration and extension of the war against Germany —similar to an earlier mandate from the senate.

Daladier earlier had given notice that he intended to revise his government.

The cabinet met early this morning, six hours after the chamber's reluctant vote of confidence.

The session, at the war ministry, lasted a half hour and then Daladier and all his ministers, except one who is in London on government business, went to Elysee palace where Daladier presented the resignation to Lebrun.

Lebrun at once arranged for the customary consultations on a new government. Custom requires that he summon first Jules Jeanneney, aged president of the senate, and then Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies.

Cabinet Formed Sept. 13

The retiring government was the product of a Sept. 13 amplification for war purposes. Broadly, however, it was the same government which Daladier instituted April 10, 1938.

At the end of a 12-hour session, the chamber followed last Friday's lead of the senate and returned a vote of confidence, but the vote was such as to leave the burden of proof still upon the premier.

Departing from a wartime policy of unanimity, and with less than half of the more than 500 members participating, the chamber voted 239 to 1 to have Daladier "take immediately and in *all domains, measures indispensa*ble to bring France's war force to a maximum, and to carry the war to victory in close accord with our allies."

The vote of confidence included this testimonial:

"The chamber expresses to the Finnish nation and army the homage of its admiration for their magnificent courage."

2 BUSINESS PLACES BURGLARIZED HERE

Garage Office and Filling Station Broken Into.

The Danner Buick Co. office at 345 North Main street and the Gaze Hill filling station at North Greenwood and Fleming streets were broken into last night, police reported. Loot was estimated at approximately $30.

Entrance to the Danner garage was gained by breaking a window at the rear of the building and then prying open doors leading into the stock room and the office, officers said. The office was ransacked and $10.87 was stolen from a cash drawer in the office. Apparently nothing was taken from the stockroom.

Entrance to the filling station was gained in a similar manner, glass in the front door being broken out, police reports show. A large variety of merchandise was taken including a flashlight, candy, chewing gum and cigarettes. Mr. Gaze said. The value of the loot was estimated at $15.00.

Both breaking were discovered by employes about 7 a. m. today when they went to the business places to open up for the day.

Adoption of Proposed New Milk Code Advocated by State Health Official

Tells Rotary Club Federal Standard Would Benefit Consumers, Dairies and Producers

Proposed adoption of the U S public health service milk ordinance for regulation and control of milk production and marketing in Marion county was advocated by state and local health authorities who were guest speakers at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Marion Rotary club at Hotel Harding Tuesday

Edward Graber assistant state milk sanitarian of the Ohio department of health the principal speaker said that placing the milk and dairy industry here under the system of standards recommended by the federal health service would not only benefit the consumers by giving the best possible assurance of milk purity but would result in more satisfactory operations for producers and dairies

The proposal to place the ordinance in effect here has been a subject of contro ersy over a period of years having first come before the local board of health several years ago and tabled because of opposition from a sizeable group of producers and dairymen and then revived about two weeks ago at a session of the board Arguments for and against the proposal were presented at that meeting and the board deferred action pending further inquiry

Recognized Safeguard

Reviewing the history of the movement to establish a uniform milk standard throughout the country Mr Graber said it has been definitely established that the most adequate means of safeguarding the quality and purity of milk is by inspection and analysis Judging milk by its cream line or butterfat was declared to be a fallacy for it is no guarantee against impurities

The standard milk ordinance as drawn up by the federal health department calls for a thorough inspection and analysis process and is an advantage to both consumers and the dairy industry he said It provides for accurate grading and labeling of milk and made complimented the local milk inspection officials and said that dairy products are maintained on a high standard here He said however that while the present regulations are excellent there are faults which would be remedied by adoption of the federal ordinance

In the course of his talk he read a summary of the various requirements of the federal ordinance relating to milk producers as listed in a form drawn up for an inspection report It covers various details regarded as essential for absolute sanitation in dairy barns milk houses and their equipment

Dr M M Weinbaum city health commissioner Dr J T Gruber city milk and meat inspector and Dr N Sifritt county health commissioner also attended the meeting

Opposition Claims

Those opposing adoption of the new regulations in Marion county base their objections on the contention that milk marketed here is of an adequately high standard and that installation of new equipment and meeting other requirements specified by the federal code would place needless expense upon producers and some dairymen and possibly drive some out of business

Mr Graber declared that these fears are unfounded especially as far as producers now complying with the state health regulations are concerned The only requirements of the federal code not included in rules set up by the state are one calling for adequate water heating facilities and another for absolutely sanitary wash and rinse vats he said

Questions Answered

Following Mr Grabers talk both he and Eugene B Willey Marion county health board sanitarian who presided during the discussion answered questions on various points relating to the federal ordinance and its application

One inquiry was about the probable cost for Marion county farmers in complying with the new provisions Mr Willey said that while this could not be definitely fixed he felt sure some estimates had been placed far too high He mentioned for example that he had seen a report that the total in the county would run about $100 000 As against this figure he said that a recent study of the local situation indicated that the average expense for 63 producers would be about $50 each

He said some producers were of the opinion that new heating equipment alone would cost each of them $100 or more

'There is a type of heater which would cost that much but there are others which can be bought for $15 Mr Willey said

Here are some of the questions put to Mr Graber and his answers

Would the new regulations result in an increase in the retail price of milk?

To the best of my knowledge there has been no increase in other cities where the ordinance has been adopted

What are the different gradings of milk under provisions of the ordinance"

There are three—A B and C Grade A milk is that which has met all requirements of inspection and analysis Grade B has failed to meet the requirements in full Grade C is milk of still lesser quality than B of course The labels serve as the health department s notice to consumers as to the quality of milk they are buying

Are Marion s dairies equipped to meet the code s requirements" Yes

Would producers get a higher price as a result of improving their equipment and meeting the ordinance requirements"

In many places dairies have added premium payments to those producers conforming to regulations Generally prices paid to producers are better

How many counties in Ohio have complied with the regulations?

Fourteen counties and between 90 and 95 communities Fifteen cities in the state including Cincinnati Toledo Dayton and Cleveland are using most of the inspection requirements

How often would inspections take place"

At least two every six months for producers and at least one a month for dairies

How many inspectors would have to be employed"

The present personnel would be able to handle the work

Would the local situation be under federal supervision"

The answer to this coming from both Mr Graber and Mr Willey was Federal authorities would have no part in it nor would the state Local officials would be in full charge The only conditions under which federal inspectors take a hand is in the event of interstate shipments For example under present conditions a dairy at Prospect has an opportunity to ship milk to Pittsburgh but cannot do so Adoption of the federal ordinance would open markets in other states

Planning a Garden?

Plough Clay Soil in the Fall and Sandy Soil in the Spring

By ROBERT E GEIGER
Associated Press Writer

PLANTS like animals grow only as fast and as much as the supply of nutrition permits

In addition to food, plants need sun and warmth in the spring but not too much heat in midsummer And they need the proper amount of water

The heavy clay soils of northern states make the best gardens when they are turned in the fall They should be plowed to a depth of eight inches but 12 is even better The land should be left rough and the clods exposed to the mellowing action of frost and freezing

Western lands also should be fall plowed to catch snow and rain thus storing moisture for dry summer weather

Sandy soils of the south are best as a rule when plowed just before planting time

Soils should not be worked when they're wet Squeeze a handful of soil if it gums into a ball or doesn't crumble readily under slight pressure it is too wet to work

Just before planting seeds work the soil with a rake or hoe until it is pulverized Seeds grow more readily in a fine, well prepared soil than in a lumpy or coarse one

Most soils need organic food Barnlot manure or peat moss is good for the average garden most experts agree Soil should get a heavy application in fall or early spring and a lighter application after planting

Special commercial fertilizers are good for many garden crops For general use they should be four per cent nitrogen 12 per cent phosphoric acid and four per cent potash Leafy crops such as spinach cabbage and kale need more nitrogen, root crops more potash

HOW PERFECT GARDEN SHOULD BE SITUATED

This is the lie for a perfect garden site

The south slope of a gentle hill so the ground gets more of the early spring sunshine

A sandy loam soil with plenty of plant food

Leap Before You Look

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: Making Tomi promise not to think of the farm, nor of Kim as her attorney, Allen kidnaps her for a picnic.

* * *

CHAPTER TWENTY

Whirling World

IT WAS a remarkable world. The lulles were so green, the beach grass a brilliant orange, the little sloughs were a vivid blue, the mountains now a deep purple.

Two herons stepped into view, to stand on long legs, red bills vivid against their white feathers. Like a Japanese etching, thought Tomi.

"Wouldn't I love to take them home," she murmured.

"No," answered Bartell, "unless you expected Abe to stuff them. White herons consider frogs a delicacy."

Tomi didn't know when she dropped off to sleep; she only knew that for the first time since the will contest she was completely at ease.

She awakened to find the sky a turquoise green, banded with strips of orange and apricot clouds. Bartell was not in sight. He was not on the little island. The tide was out. Only a thin strip of water lay between their mound and the next one.

Beside her was her vanity box. On top was a note.

I'm off to find a telephone. Keep the home-fires burning so I can find you if it turns dark before I get back. Love.

Allen.

Tomi forgot the first part of the note, because she was concentrating on the "love-Allen." It wouldn't be a difficult thing to do, she thought, and found that thought exciting.

She dressed, then investigated the larder. She'd have everything ready to serve by the time Allen returned.

He returned at dusk, making it across the bayou as the tide was sweeping in. Tomi watched him, smiling, believing her joy in his returning was merely relief at not having to spend a night on a lonely island.

There was no excuse for the readiness with which she went into his arms, with which she lifted her face to meet his lips, or the heady, reckless intoxication which swept over her at their touch.

The world should have stood still, but it didn't. Stars appeared overhead, the sky deepened to purple, the red eye of the little campfire begged for fuel, and all were ignored.

The world didn't stand still; it turned topsy-turvy for Tomi. It stood on its heavy old head and threw her well-organized plans into space. What was a frog farm? What did success, winning a wager with a ghost, mean?

Allen said nothing when he released her. Still dazed, she watched him pile logs on the little fire and, automatically, she reached to pull the coffeepot back, to scrape some coals aside for frankfurters he'd brought with him.

"I telephoned Dotty," he said at length. "She was worried. There will be a boat here for us in a couple of hours."

Tomi nodded, and fastened a bun to a toasting fork.

"I brought some cream for your coffee," he continued. "I found a highway with a little store and filling station a couple of miles beyond."

Again Tomi nodded.

Not until the dinner was over, the fire built up as a beacon and cigarets lighted, did their talk become personal.

"Tomi—" Allen was stretched on the sand, chin propped in his hands, firelight on his hair—"I wish that boat would never come. We're both different out here like this. I wish that difference could last forever."

Magic Circle

Tomi couldn't answer. She knew this was some kind of a magic circle which would break when it touched the reality of home shores. This was a vast blue bubble, bright with stars and firelight, and the first shaft of manmade light would pierce it.

"Our promises only hold until we reach home," she agreed.

They sat then in silence which had no need of words because of some inner communion. And then from the waters came a searchlight, the red and green eyes of an approaching craft. Shrill and clear came a voice. It rose above the muted tone of the slowing engine.

"I must say," cried Lily Mankin, "that is a fine way for a person who's about to be married to act. Pretending to be literally cast off on a desert island. You can't tell me she didn't plan that."

The blue bubble burst. Iridescent fragments of dreams and desires melted into darkness. Tomi's world righted with a jolt.

"A person about to be married."

She looked at Bartell. He was looking at her, a question in his eyes. So he was trying to see how she was taking it, was he?

All right, he had promised. She would carry out that promise to the very minute they reached home.

"But, Lily," she caroled back, "there's many a slip between the curb and the city clerks' office."

* * *

"Life is real, life is earnest," quoted Tomi from her pillows. Darn life, anyhow. She'd sell both the real and the earnest for ten cents this morning. Ahead of her loomed a whole day which she must spend within three hundred yards of Allen Bartell—Allen and Lily.

It was bad enough having Lily on the rescuing party, but Pierre had been there also. Pierre, his blue eyes mirroring a crucified heart.

She had offered no explanations, nor had Bartell. They had chattered, laughing, a bit hysterically on her part, until they reached his pier.

And then Tomi had hooked her arm through Pierre's and sung a snatch of Thanks for the Memories, to Bartell.

Tomi beat at an innocent pillow. She would spend the entire day in bed. Why? Couldn't she take it? Hadn't she asked for it? Hadn't she known that there were two kinds of love? All right, she'd been in the clouds for a whole day, and now she was back down to earth and decidedly bruised.

"Good morning," purred Dotty, from the door. "Here's your breakfast. Pierre is haunting the house looking like Banquo in the flesh. I thought you might need a little fortitude before facing him."

Tomi sat up, the wings of her black hair swinging. "Darn Pierre. Darn Allen Bartell. Darn everything, including you, Dotty Dougherty. You conniving—"

"Taste these eggs and see how I connived to make them taste like anything but eggs. A dash of this and a dash of that. Go wash your face!"

Tomi rumpled her hair, then catching a whiff of the coffee, jumped out to return in a few moments in a becoming negligee of lemon yellow.

"Those gorgeous roses! Where did they come from?" Tomi cried, touching two perfect salmon-pink buds. "They smell like cloves. What are they?"

Dotty tucked the corners of her lips into place. "They're Waratwees, and they came from a florist and a note came with them."

'My Wife'

Tomi knew she would not touch the note with a ten foot poker, but there being no poker at hand, she waited only until Dotty left her alone.

Bartell's signature flashed up like his smile. "I cut a hunk out of that sunset sky last night," he wrote, "and had it made up into these roses. They're to remind you of what could happen if we could make enough promises."

And just what did he mean by that?

She hid the note where a knot of velvet ribbon tied the lacy flounce of her robe together, when she heard Dotty's step.

"When are Lily and Allen to be married?" she asked, innocently.

Dotty looked at her sharply. "About the same time you and Pierre step off, I imagine," she returned.

"Pierre and I?" asked Tomi.

"From the way Pierre acted yesterday, I didn't know but what you were already married."

Tomi's laugh bubbled out "How did he act?" she asked.

Dotty laughed with her, then shook her head. "He'll probably tell you," she advised. "And do come down before he wears a hole in the living room rug. He's been pacing back and forth since dawn."

Poor Pierre. She might as well go down and get it over. Assure him of whatever it was he wanted.

Dressing, she stared at the mirror in surprise. She looked almost pretty. It must be the dress—white lawn with tiny black dots, the full gathered skirt, the square neck with little knots of black ribbon.

Pierre stopped his pacing as she came down the stairs, then rushed to meet her. "Tomi!"

He was haggard. Poor, poor Pierre.

"Tomi, you wouldn't talk to me last night. I couldn't sleep."

"Well, Pierre, if I'd tried to talk to you, I'd have gone to sleep sitting up. I was tired."

"I must talk to you immediately, and alone," he insisted, as though he hadn't heard her. "Alone."

Tomi looked around. They seemed to be alone. "Will the garden be alone enough?" she asked.

Pierre led her out to a seat that Old Abe had built near the garden pool. A weeping willow threw lacy curtains on three sides, the fourth gave view to the house and the drive and paths.

But having led her to seclusion, Pierre said nothing. He resumed his pacing until the fish, who had come up to nibble at the rice flour balls Tomi tossed in, retreated to the shelter of lily pads.

"Pierre," she said at length, "what is the matter?"

He paused before her, blue eyes dark with worry. "I don't know how to tell you," he began. "It's about Bartell, what he did yesterday, his motive in kidnapping you."

"Kidnapping," scoffed Tomi. "That's ridiculous. You heard the mechanics say the feed-line had become disconnected."

"You admit, don't you, that you didn't know he'd planned a.... picnic?"

"Pierre, what right have you to question me?"

"I—that is, you are going to be my wife. I have a right to look after you."

Tomi was suddenly startled. Pierre had never mentioned marriage. She had taken his intentions for granted, just as he was assuming now that she had.

'Does it occur to you that you have said nothing to me about marriage?"

"Oh, Tomi." He was on his knees, his head in her lap. "I've been so completely upset, so worried. For hours yesterday until Dotty broke down and told us you wouldn't be coming back until sunset, I nearly went wild. I pictured you drowned, or drifting out in the bay. How did I know but what Bartell would find some way to—"

"To what, Pierre?"

He stood up. "I don't know what I'm saying. I guess it's jealousy. But after Lily had talked to me I wanted to shoot that rat."

Tomi stiffened in alarm. "What did Lily say?"

Continued tomorrow.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, March 21

A DAY of great success and the reaping of liberal rewards for industry, integrity, high purpose and fidelity is presaged from the mutual and lunar configurations. There is likely to be much stirring action, possibly drastic and strenuous, to the point of somewhat perilous performance in putting over major programs. Impetuosity, recklessness, over-aggressive measures and quarels would prove detrimental.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves launched in a year of very active or drastic situations, in which much enduring success and recognition for worthy past performances may be reaped. Industry, integrity and loyalty may achieve high rewards and much stability for the fortunes and personal well-being.

A child born on this day may be profound, studious, steadfast, and industrious, although having flashes of temperament or temper. Generally it may be generous, noble, friendly, with strong inner urges to the humane and social betterment of its fellows, succeeding notably in cooperation with groups.

Waldo Twins in Hospital Aid Role

Above are LaVerne, right, and LaVone, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. McLaughlin of Waldo, who are in nurses training school at White Cross hospital in Columbus. The picture of the twins with "Mrs. Chase," the dummy model on which the nurses learn the rudiments of bedside technique, was taken to publicize the hospital's loyalty movement financial drive from April 1 to April 15. The twins are graduates of Waldo High school.

Charles A. Jones of Columbus assistant treasurer of the American Education Press, Inc., yesterday was appointed general chairman of the drive. Mr. Jones lived in Marion during the time he was serving as receiver for the Marion National bank. White Cross hospital is the property of the Ohio Methodist conference.

Vandenberg Objects to Candidates' Ways of Seeking G. O. P. Nomination

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 20 — Senator Vandenberg of Michigan declared today the Republican presidential nomination was so "desperately important" that it should flow from the people's deliberate judgment and "not from the transient impulse of a campaign tour."

Vandenberg took this indirect slap at candidates who have been stumping for top Republican honors in declining invitations to speak in Wisconsin and Nebraska before their presidential primaries, in which he is entered.

"If the convention ultimately chooses me," he added, "I shall then enter the campaign with every energy and resource at my command."

President Denies Jory

His statement came after President Roosevelt had caused a wave of new speculation on Capitol Hill by terming untrue a column by Ernest Lindley which said the President had told an unidentified southern legislator:

That he wanted to retire,

That Secretary Hull was a good man for his place,

That if Postmaster General Farley was put on the ticket, his Catholicism would stir up religious prejudice.

Mr. Roosevelt told reporters late yesterday that the column was made out of whole cloth and that such an interview with a legislator had not taken place. He said he never had made the remark about Farley and that the rest of the article was equally false.

Lindley issued a statement last night describing his column as "a piece of straight reporting of information which came to me from sources whose reliability I have no reason to doubt."

"Within 24 hours after its publication," he added, "I received word from several Democratic politicians confirming its substances and expressing the fear that they might be 'on the spot' at the White House for having talked 'out of school.'"

Praises Farley Speech

The President praised Farley's Saturday night speech here in which the cabinet officer told the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick:

"We must never permit the ideals of this republic to sink to a point where every American father and mother, regardless of race, color, or creed, can not look proudly into the cradle of their new-born babe and see a future president of the United States."

Farley's friends in the capital took heart from the President's remarks. They said that Farley should be given an equal chance for the presidential nomination with all comers if Mr. Roosevelt is not a candidate. Some contended that he was a good vice-presidential bet if first place went elsewhere than New York.

Mr. Roosevelt, cheery despite a stubborn head cold, recalled to the reporters that he had told them 10 days ago he had not read Lindley's article. He said he read it subsequently.

NEW TRIAL REQUESTED IN MARYSVILLE COURT

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, March 20 — Defense attorneys, Clifton L. Caryl and Albert H. Scharrer today filed a motion for a new trial in the case of the State of Ohio vs. Samuel P. Sloane in which a jury of five women and seven men returned a verdict of guilty of violation of the securities law last night after deliberating about three hours.

Judge R. L. Cameron has set Friday morning as the time for the hearing on the motion for a new trial.

In making his motion for a new trial, Attorney Caryl cited thirteen points, which, he said, entitled Sloane to a new trial.

Sentence will not be passed by Judge Cameron until after the hearing on the motion for a new trial. If the motion of a new tiral is overruled defense attorneys stated that they will appeal it to the court of appeals.

YOUR HEALTH

Meat Eaters.

Don't Americans eat too much meat? Do they eat more meat than people of other countries?

The actual statistics show that in the year 1937, the last year for which figures were available, the United States averaged 137 pounds of meat per person, as compared to 300 pounds for Argentine, 205 for Australia and 138 for Canada.

The United States consumes a quarter as much lamb per average capita as the inhabitants of the British Isles. If the consumption of meats and lard were increased in the United States to equal the four leading meat-eating countries, we would have to produce 10,000,000 more cattle, or 60 per cent more than the present total annual slaughter. If the entire increase fell on hogs, we would have to produce 80,000,000, or 150 per cent more than the total annual slaughter.

OVERPLANTING UNLIKELY, AAA OFFICIALS REPORT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 19—Most American farmers apparently prefer to go along with the crop control program, federal officials said today, than to gamble on expanding production for a possible enlarged European market.

An agriculture department report on farmers' planting intentions indicated today that the 1940 corn acreage would be the smallest in more than 40 years, that tobacco plantings would be 21 per cent smaller, than a year ago, and that the wheat acreage would be no larger than a year ago despite a sharp advance in prices.

Looming large in the farmers' thoughts, officials said, were reports showing that the war had retarded exports of American farm products and an AAA statement that there was nothing to indicate foreign markets would improve this season.

Marriage Meddlers

Madre Tells Mary She Is Sure To Get Role If She Duplicates Portrayal on the Mirror.

I OBEYED Mary's injunction with intense interest, and when she had finished the recitation of her role in my play in the fashion in which I had drilled her, I was jubilant, and hastened to share my exultance with my husband's young niece, who was waiting quietly for my judgment.

"Can you do this again tomorrow, Mary," I asked tensely, "exactly the way you did it today, without altering the inflection of a single syllable?"

"Oh" Mary exclaimed ecstatically "Was I all right" I must have been if you ask me that."

"You were better than all right," I said emphatically. "You were as nearly perfect as it was possible to be. But I want to put you on record. Can you, will you do it again tomorrow" If you can, I'll wager anything I have that the role will be yours permanently Your father-in-law's artistic conscience would never permit him to take it away from you if you duplicate your performance of today"

Mary's body stiffened, her head was thrown back, and she raised her arms high above her head, linking her hands together and shaking them in an absurd but reassuring gesture.

"I'll duplicate it or die in the attempt," she promised emphatically. "Do you want me to go over it again now so as to make certain I won't forget"

"No" I said explosively. "Not for anything! What I want you to do now is to put all thought of this role out of your head until tomorrow"

"That's a tall order," Mary smiled, "seeing that for months it's occupied every minute of my waking thoughts that wasn't occupied with worrying over Noel. But I can see your point, and I'll do the best I can"

"I wish I could send you and Noel out for a drive or for a trip to the movies," I said, "but, unfortunately, we have to keep you incommunicado"

"I'll make Noel play chess with me tonight," Mary said. "We can always work up a father or get into a good exciting scrap over that, and we haven't had a game in a coon's age. We'll play until we're sleepy and then, tomorrow morning, I'll sleep until you call me How's that for a plan?"

"It's a most excellent plan," I told her. "Now give me a kiss for good luck, and then I'll call Katie to come up and get the trays."

"She's probably wild from curiosity by now," Mary said with a giggle that held a note of something very like hysteria, and her embrace of me was convulsive.

"Promise me something!" I said, holding her off at arms' length.

"Of course," she assented promptly. "What is it?"

"Before you start your chess games, go out to the couch on that upstairs balcony and take a nap until dinner time. I'll see that nobody disturbs you"

"I can't think of anything I'd like better to do," she said gratefully

"Then you'd better get ready for it at once," I said. "Tell Noel I prescribed it. And suppose you go now through this upper corridor to the main part of the house. I'll go down the kitchen stairs and through the kitchen and dining room. In that way we won't be seen together, and Olina will have no chance to connect our absences from the family circle"

"Okay!" Mary rejoined, and departed. I waited until I was sure she was not rushing back to avoid meeting Olina, and then, going to the top of the kitchen stairs, I lifted my voice and called to Katie.

Marion Builders' Supply Co. Lands in Third Place; Gunder and Schaffner-Denzer Teams Also Move Into Ranks of Top Ten.

Three Marion crews grabbed berths among the 10 ranking leaders of the regular division during the Inter-City bowling tournament warfare last night at the Marion Recreation Center.

Marion Builders' Supply shot a 2,875 total to land in third place, 22 pins behind the pace-setting Cooke's Recreation of Lorain. Gunder Funeral Home keglers moved into fifth with a 2,837 series and Schaffner-Denzer Funeral pin-topplers nabbed tenth with a 2,802 total.

Sixteen squads, all local timber with the exception of a lone entry from Upper Sandusky, were in action last night. An even dozen were in the regular division and the remaining four competed in the booster section. None of the quartet of booster contestants managed to roll into ranks of the leaders.

Norris Sets Pace

Anchorman F. Norris was the big gun in the Marion Builders' pin barrage. He put together a 663 on rounds of 210-229-224. The crew had 930 in the first game, boosted the tally 14 pins in the second and then topped off the series with a 1,001 game.

Gunder Funeral Home pinmen were paced by Robert Shoemaker. He posted games of 179-206-225 for a 610 total. The quintet had better than 900 in each game, starting 950, adding the best round of 963 and dropping to 924 in the third.

Scores of the Schaffner-Denzer outfit ranged from L. Pickering's 570 to M. Hinklin's 536. After spilling 1,012 pins in the initial effort, they settled to an 888 middle game and a 908 closing round.

F. Norris' 663 for the Builders was the evening's best individual effort. Four others managed to rack up double-century series. P. Boyd's 642 was second, R. Wells posted a 640, J. Ward 628 and R. Shoemaker 610.

Trinity Baptists Lose Season's Final Game but Win Championship

Awarded Pennant as Epworths Bow to Prospect Street.

Trinity Baptist cagers backed into the 1940 championship of the Sunday school basketball league last night at the Y. M. C. A.

In spite of a 32-28 setback at the hands of the Wesley entry, the Baptists emerged from the season-ending round as crownholders. Their single-game lead remained intact when Epworth, the only other entry within shooting distance of deadlocking the issue, dropped a 37-32 decision to the Prospect Street Methodists.

The Baptists closed the schedule with a record of 10 victories and four defeats. Four teams, United Brethren, Prospect Street Methodist, Epworth and Wesley, wound up with identical records of nine wins and five losses, to split second place honors.

United Brethren handed Flie Memorial a 42-36 defeat and Oakland Evangelical tripped Forest Lawn, 46-41. Final standings and summaries follow:

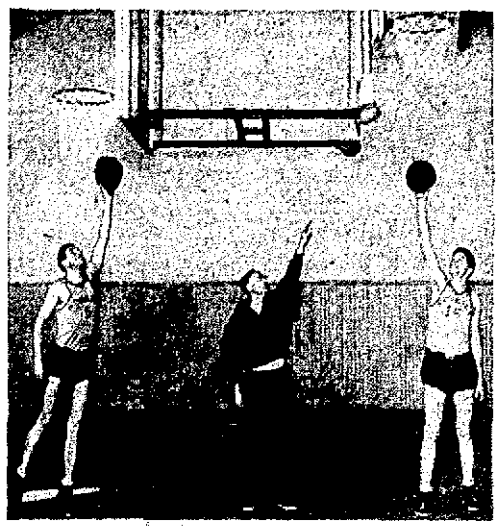
SWIM MEET NEAR

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, March 20—The usual hotly contested battle for points is expected at Pitt's 26th annual interscholastic swim meet Saturday with new faces challenging the defending champion McKinley High of Canton, O. McKinley will be back with a strong nucleus of the outfit that won last spring. Strong Vincent of Erie, as always, will put up a strong fight for honors.

Coach Tries Out 12-Foot Basket



Hec Edmundson, University of Washington cage coach and member of the national rules committee which meets March 31-April 1 at Kansas City, is shown above testing the proposed 12-foot high baskets. They have been suggested to replace the present 10-foot type as an antidote for mile-high cagers. Edmundson after the test said he isn't sold on the new type. It does take some advantage away from the tall man but it widens the rebound are around the hoop and a tall man can grab the ball easily. Oddly enough, the high basket seems to be easier to hit on long shots.

LEADERS UPSET IN A. A. U. CAGE TOURNEY

By The Associated Press

DENVER, March 20—In a mad scramble like the National A. A. U. basketball tournament, you never know when a first round bye is going to turn into a second round "bye bye."

Sixteen teams of the 50 that began the week-long marathon answered "here" today for third round games and only eight of these were rated good enough to draw byes in the first round.

The people's two choices, the national champion Denver Nuggets and the Bartlesville, Okla., Phillips 66 Machine, runnerup last year, play their next games tonight.

The St. Louis Rangers eliminated Youngstown (O.) sheet and Tube 33-23.

Dodgers Boosting Pee Wee Reese As Candidate for "Rookie-of-the-Year"

CLEARWATER, Fla. — Rookie Harold (Pee Wee) Reese clinched a job with the Brooklyn Dodgers before he hardly had worked up a good sweat.

The lad from Louisville pulled on a gray uniform and spent half an hour in an infield drill. That was enough for Leo the Lip Durocher, who skippers the Dodgers.

"He belongs," said Durocher.

A week or so of watching Pee Wee skitter around and Durocher couldn't hold himself to such a two-word eulogy.

"Ab-so-lute-ly," said Lippy Leo. "He's the greatest prospect I've seen in 15 years. Hell, maybe he's the best I've ever seen.

"Yes, sir, I've seen some pretty good ones, come up but this kid has got 'em all beat. He'll be a sensation.

"He plays ground balls low to the turf, something like young Eddie Miller of the Bees. He's fast as a streak. And can he throw that ball? Boy, can he!"

For a man about to lose his job, Lippy Leo was indulging in a bit of unusual ecstatics. Because Manager Durocher is also shortstop Durocher and this rookie flash is a shortstop, too.

"If he can hit—and I think he can—your Uncle Leo may get a long spell of bench-sitting," said Durocher. "I'm going to bring him along slowly. I'll start the season at short and then slip Pee Wee in now and then. And if he goes great, well you can't pull a guy out of the lineup if he's on fire.

"He has a nice smooth swing. Nothing jerky about it. And when he swings that bat slices through on a straight line. His swing doesn't waver an inch."

Three years ago Reese was on a sandlot church team. His club won a city league championship and Louisville signed him. It takes most ball players several years to work up to the big minor leagues but Hal made the jump from sandlot to Class AA in one leap. He was a fixture almost from the start—played 138 games in 1938 and 149 last year.

Brooklyn bought him for $40,000 and a flock of players.

Although he is small—5 foot 10 and 160 pounds—Pee Wee's nicknames does not derive from his physical dimensions. His first national fame came as the winner of a national marble tournament.

He'll be the Dodger's candidate for "rookie-of-the-year" honors.

PEE WEE REESE: "He'll be a sensation."

NELSON GIVES AWAY CLUB, NOW MAY LOSE TITLE

Rival Uses Driver to Take Lead in Tourney.

By The Associated Press

PINEHURST, N. C., March 20—The driver Byron Nelson thought wasn't good enough may cost him the North-South open golf title he won in 1939.

Two brand new, specially-made drivers arrived here for Nelson the other day. The U. S. open champion tried them out, kept the one he liked, and made his fellow Texan, Ben Hogan, a present of the other.

Armed with this new weapon, Hogan shot a round of golf that put him three strokes up on the field as they went into the second 18 holes of the thirty-eighth annual tourney today. He called it one of the most satisfactory rounds he's ever had, and he was full of praise for his new war club.

355 at School Groups' Morning Church Service

Attendance increased to 355 at the pre-Easter worship service conducted this morning at Central Christian church by the Girl Reserve and Hi-Y groups of Harding High school. The audience included faculty members and other adults interested in the services.

"Along the Way," was the theme. The service opened with an organ prelude, "Invocation in B Flat," by Guilmant, played by Mrs. Harry L. Bell. John Roberts led the meditation period and Marilyn Abbott led the singing of "Jesus Calls Us." The responsive reading was led by Dick Lawson. The service closed with a song, "In the Glad Morning of My Day," by Marilyn Abbott, a reading, "I Am a Dream In the Soul of Youth," by Barbara Caldwell, and a hymn, "How Firm a Foundation." The postlude played by Mrs. Bell was "Lento," by Schumann.

The public is invited to join in the Thursday and Friday morning services at 7:30. "Fellowship Along the Way" is the theme of the Thursday morning service.

This year the Easter morning sunrise service will be held at 7:30 at Epworth Methodist church.

C. OF C. GROUP PLANS CITY BEAUTIFICATION

Event Similar To One Last Year Now Scheduled.

Plans for the 1940 city beautification campaign, which will be along lines similar to those of last year's, were informally discussed last night at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce offices. Frank Brabson, chairman of the Chamber's city beautification committee, was in charge. Representatives from the Marion Garden club, the Burroughs Nature club, Altrusa club and the Marion Real Estate board attended.

The meeting was the first group session in the 1940 campaign. Other meetings with other groups probably will follow.

The general idea of staging contests for homes and businesses will be continued and possibly new features added.

TWO S. W. O. C. MEN HELD BY WIERTON OFFICERS

PITTSBURGH, March 20 — Chairman Phillip Murray of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee charged today that two S.W.O.C. representatives were detained more than an hour for questioning in Weirton, W. Va., home of the Weirton Steel plant, because they attempted to photograph a civic sign.

The report was made in a telegram to Attorney General Jackson in which Murray said Sheriff W. Dan Ferguson claimed he was acting "under instructions from the federal bureau of investigation to apprehend any individuals that the sheriff, in his judgment, considered suspicious."

Training Camp Briefs

By The Associated Press

BRADENTOWN, Fla.—The New York Yankees still are not worried about old Father Time. Though the present Yank pitching corps is hardly wasting out, Marvin Breuer and Tommy Reis, the righthand rookies, up from Kansas City, have given the champs cause to cheer loudest. The two combined to shut out the Bees yesterday.

• • •

Mellon Holds Tribe

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — The belief that the Giants will have as good a pitching staff as any National league club continues to gain weight. Latest to give Manager Bill Terry cause to smile is Cliff Melton the slim southpaw, who pitched four innings of shutout ball yesterday in blanking the Cleveland Indians.

• • •

Hank Pleases Boss

LAKELAND, Fla.—Back at the helm after an illness of several days, Manager Del Baker of the Detroit Tigers said he was especially pleased at the manner in which Hank Greenberg cavorted in the outfield against Cincinnati.

Phillies Ride Time

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—There will be no escaping "power" from the National league if President Gerald Nugent of the Phillies can help it. The gang to hold up waivers on every promising player in our league and no one who shows anything will get away from us. The teams will have to start cutting down soon and we're going to get 'em."

• • •

Mack Pulls at Plate

WINTER HAVEN, Fla — Ray Mack's failure to hit has the Cleveland Indians worried. The second sacker has collected only four hits in 25 times at bat. The Tribe plays Washington at Orlando today.

Tries Out Joost

TAMPA, Fla. — Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds says the reason he isn't playing Lonnie Frey is because he wants him to gain weight—but everyone else thinks he's trying to give Eddie Joost a chance at the second base job.

CRUCIFIXION SUBJECT OF SERMON AT FOREST LAWN

Significance of Death on Cross Explained by Pastor.

"The Crucifixion" was the sermon topic chosen by Rev. J. A. Carriker, pastor, at last night's mission services at Forest Lawn Presbyterian church. He chose for a text Luke 23:33: "And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified Him."

"As the hour drew nigh, He did not wait for death to overtake Him but went forth to meet it," Rev. Carriker said. There is something about the cross of Jesus that brings men back to Him to grasp his meaning for their lives. We look upon the cross and come away feeling we have found a haven for our souls. The cross is the only place where the human heart can be forced from sin. The cross also is related to hope. Nowhere else has man ever been able to look sin in the face without fear as when he looks in the face of Jesus.

"When we see the victory of Christ on the cross we realize our own victory through His death," he concluded.

Robert Dellinger, Ed Endicott and Robert Weitzel sang a number, and a special selection was sung by the choir.

Tonight DeVer Walker, a candidate for the ministry from Forest Lawn church, and who will graduate from Western Theological seminary at Pittsburgh in May, will preach. The service will carry a special appeal to the young people.

The caliper compass was invented by an artificer in Nuremberg in 1519.

RUSSIA BANS DEFENSE PACT

Moscow Turns Thumbs Down on Scandinavian Treaty with Finland.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, March 20—Soviet Russia has turned thumbs down on any defensive alliance among Scandinavian states and Finland on the ground that it would be "aimed at the U. S. S. R." and in conflict with the Russian-Finnish peace treaty.

The official Russian news agency, Tass, announced today that it was authorized to publish this as the Russian government's position.

"The foreign press alleges that negotiations are going on among Finland, Sweden and Norway on conclusion of a so-called 'defensive alliance' for the purpose of military protection of the frontiers of Finland," said the announcement.

"It is also alleged that the Soviet Union does not object to such a 'defensive alliance' among Finland, Sweden and Norway.

"Tass is authorized to state that these reports on the attitude of the Soviet Union do not correspond to the facts."

VOCATIONAL TALKS GIVEN AT HARDING

Marion Steam Shovel Co. Men Tell of Work.

Two talks have been given at Harding High school this week by Marion professional men invited to speak as a part of the school's vocational guidance program.

Yesterday morning Clarence W. Snyder, chief accountant at the Marion Steam Shovel Co., talked to a large group of young people who have indicated an interest in office work. He dealt with phases of work in large offices. Last week the group heard a talk on aspects of work in private offices.

A group of about 80 pupils heard J. E. Scandling, metallurgist at the Marion Steam Shovel Co., Monday morning. He talked on chemical engineering and demonstrated some of the effects of chemicals on various metals.

Since the two talks to the commercial group some of the young people have become convinced that to be successful in this field they must go on to college or take special commercial training to augment their high school commercial course, a reaction gratifying to the faculty sponsors, they reported.

COUNCIL AT BUCYRUS ACTS ON POOL ISSUE

Legislation Passed To Put Project on May Ballot.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, March 20—Bucyrus was a step closer to securing a municipal swimming pool today after city council last night unanimously adopted a resolution declaring it necessary to build a pool, and authorizing the mayor and service director to enter into a contract with federal authorities with a view of securing a federal grant for the project.

The question of a pool now lies with the voters at the May primary when a bond issue for the city's portion of the project, estimated tentatively at between $25,000 and $30,000 will be submitted for approval. A similar bond issue was rejected by the voters two years ago.

Tentative figures for the pool as set up by the service director are approximately $69,000 with the federal grant estimated at $43,000.

FOOD STAMP PLAN THREAT TO ECONOMY

More Funds Asked To Extend Distribution System.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON March 20— Last minute pressure by civic organizations to expand the government's food stamp system threatened today to push congressional economy plans further out of kilter

With the senate debating the farm appropriation bill—already swollen $201 940 040 over budget estimates — economy advocates said there was a growing demand for an additional $28 000 000 to finance distribution of food to needy families through the stamp plan It now operates in about 40 cities but applications have come in from 700 others

Senator Byrnes Democrat of South Carolina said that sentiment for this increase apparently had been built up by competition between Chambers of Commerce and other civic organizations to win designation as a food stamp distribution center

The house voted $83 000 000 for that purpose and for export subsidies, but Senator La Follette Progressive of Wisconsin proposed an increase to $113 000 000

The senate appropriations committee limited this amount with $212 000 000 for "parity" payments in boosting prospective appropriations $208 958 884 above the house approved total Senators Bilbo Democrat of Mississippi and Lee Democrat of Oklahoma want to increase the "parity" fund to $007 000 000

BRICKER COMMUTES THREE LIFE SENTENCES

COLUMBUS O March 20— Gov Bricker commuted sentences of three Ohio penitentiary convicts today making them eligible for parole All were serving life terms

The sentence of Edward Dean Springfield Negro convicted of first degree murder was reduced to second degree for the slaying of Mark Davis railway trainman during the 1906 Clark county race riot in which several were slain

The pardon and parole board informed the governor that race prejudice was exceedingly high at the time of Dean's conviction and it was doubtful if he could have received an absolutely impartial trial

Second degree murder charges against Clifford Frye and C F Cater of Guernsey county were lowered to Manslaughter carrying terms of one to 10 years
